Service dogs help veterans to re-establish productive lives by providing companionship and physical assistance. The challenge is providing enough service dogs to support the 350,000 wounded warriors in need, many of whom have sustained traumatic wounds limiting their daily activities and quality of life. The cost to train one service dog can be more than $30,000 and take up to two years. Our Poppy Project will help provide a service dog for a veteran while honoring all who have served.

As part of our project, we will sell poppies for $20 each on the lawn of Memorial Park during the week prior to the Memorial Day parade. Each poppy flower will be inscribed with a veteran's name. In collaboration with Floral Park American Legion Post #334, we will donate all the money raised to Canine Companions for Independence, an organization that provides service dogs to veterans.

We are asking our neighborhood businesses for small donations to help us get started. We'll be doing a lot of cutting, sawing and painting. So, we'll need to raise funds to buy supplies and advertise. Any donation would be greatly appreciated.
